

EUROPEAN STUDIES MAJOR

The European Studies Major, part of the International & Area Studies IDP, allows students to analyze the area (or a subregion, e.g., Western Europe/European Union, Central and Eastern Europe, Scandinavia, Mediterranean Europe) from an interdisciplinary and modern perspective. The major seeks to ground students in broad international issues which they can then use to focus on particular concerns of that part of the world.

Admission to the Major: UCLA students must apply to the European Studies major. Admission to the European Studies major is on a competitive basis, using the preparation requirements as a minimum standard for consideration. Note that meeting minimum qualifications does not guarantee admission to the European Studies major.

*Completion of the elementary year of the foreign language is acceptable when applying for the major. Completion of the intermediate year of the foreign language is required to fulfill all preparation requirements, but can be done after being accepted to the major.
