Class of '50
Planning now for 2015

Class of '54
Oct. 10-11

42 In 1992, the year of our 50th reunion, our class members contributed $500,000 to endow a faculty chair. José Saldívar, Professor of Ethnic Studies and English, who has held the chair since July 1, 2000, will hold it until June 30, 2015. Over the years, the Class of 1942 has also contributed over $9,200,000 to support various programs and services, including more than $6,500,000 for Cal Alumni Scholarships and over $2,200,000 for the library. Our contributions have made, and will continue to help provide a Cal education for many worthy students.
Rebecca Hayden, 2598 Filbert St, Apt 2, San Francisco 94123, beckyhnotes@sbcglobal.net, 415/931-4283

44 Helen Eads Miles, who had a career at Standard Oil that included a transfer to another department after she married one of her bosses, Samuel Miles, nowadays spends a lot of her time in her extensive two-acre garden in Sebastopol. She gets great enjoyment from entertaining in it. And she likes to admire the view of her garden, which adjoins acres of vineyards and hills beyond, from her home. As a freshman, Helene became a Cal football fan, and she still is one.

From being a Gamma Phi Beta, English major, Phi Beta Kappa at Cal, Margarette Smith Bianco became a farmer's wife when she married Paul Bianco and moved to his family's large farm/ranch in Casa Grande, Arizona. For many years, Meg taught in the Casa Grande elementary school. Now retired and a widow, Meg keeps busy with a small garden, reading, and enjoying her son Walter's four children and her seven grandchildren.

Peter Mawdsley, a major in agronomy at Davis, came to Cal during WWII when much of Davis was shut down and moved to Berkeley. After graduation, he worked for the Department of Agriculture, then spent 26 years working in a family machine shop business. During that time he also acquired a degree in mechanical engineering. Peter and his wife, Virginia, had a son and a daughter who have produced five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. His extended family lives not far from where he lives in Lake Oswego, Oregon.

74 years ago, we began an experience that would change our lives and give us life long enrichment. While some of us had graduation postponed because of WWII, the rest of us this summer can celebrate, each in our own way, our graduation 70 years ago.

Class Secretaries: Dick Duhring, 13871 Robleda Rd, Los Altos Hills 94022, fkd@duhring.net; Virginia Pearson Anderson, 100 Bay Pl, #2001, Oakland 94610

48 The gala 65th class reunion was held on November 10 at the elegant San Francisco Towers with a luncheon for 50 classmates and guests. Joe Kaplan, Treva Jo Hatchett-Marcus, Joe Ehram, Mary Martins, and Marian Diamond chaired and hosted the joyful event. The Cal Straw Hat band, the spirit group of cheerleaders, and the always beloved Oski led the singing with great animation. George Breslauer, Executive Vice Chancellor and Provost greeted the class for our beloved University. The other attendees were Harold and Dorothy Hyde, Betty Klein, Jeanna and Nelson Barry, Clyde and Helen Bird, Thomas Borden, Mary Brownson, Shirley Conner, Cleone and John Damonte, Thomas and Ann Devine, Gail LaForge, Betty Lichtman, Margarete Kullberg, Laurence and Carol Mann, Polly Mansfield-Post, Shirley Nell, Donald Nelson, Doris Olson, Lorraine Osmundson, John Post, Alice Robie, Jane Samuelson, Katherine Thompson, Jeffry Spencer, John and Rose Tom, N.B. and Patricia Trenton, Jack and Jeanne Wickware, E.H. "Ted" and Hazel Winslow, and Janice With.

Many classmates sent in bios, too many to include in the California magazine, but these have been compiled and are available by contacting Mary Martins.

Marian Diamond, one of our illustrious classmates, who has studied the human brain over the years, spoke via video. For a glimpse of her work you can access Google "My Love Affair with the Brain" by Marian Diamond.

Photographs of the attendees, by John Spicer, are available by logging in to uclberkeleyclassof4865threunion.shutterfly.com.

They are wonderful. If you wish copies, please contact Mary at 1661 Pine St. Apt 824, San Francisco, CA 94109 or mjmartins2@aol.com.

Mary Ambrose Bartholomew, whose husband William '49 is deceased, lives in Lake Oswego, Oregon, after a 25-year career as a classroom teacher and speech pathologist. She has an active life at a retirement community. She enjoys traveling, hiking, dancing, reading, and taking various classes. Mary was married for 50 years and has 5 children, 18 grandchildren, and 10 great-grandchildren.

Mary Joaquina Martins lives at the San Francisco Towers and continues to travel, is Treasurer of the Centro Social Monsenhor Julio Martins Foundation that supports a children's day-care in northern Portugal, and continues to fundraise and support a preschool for 80 children living in the village of Cumbana, Mozambique.
Class Secretaries: Mary Brownson, 1811 Moreland Dr, Alameda 94501, howdyeb@comcast.net; Mary Joaquina Martins, 1661 Pine St Apt 824, San Francisco 94109 mjmartins2@aol.com, 415/447-5449

51 Berkeley's Haas School of Business latest edition magazine pictured Bob Kelleher and Dean Emeritus Earl "Budd" Cheit at the Old Blues luncheon. Speaking of Old Blues, your secretary Elayne McCrea was perusing the Class of '51 guest list at the CAA Charter Banquet held on March 22nd at the Westin St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco. William Powers '67 was 2014 Alumnus of the Year. It was a glorious event, kudos to CAA for returning the event to the St. Francis Hotel.
Class Secretaries: Elayne McCrea McCabe, 23500 Cristo Rey Dr #503H, Cupertino 95014, elayne.mccabe@yahoo.com; Carolyn Robinson Storer, 2838 Saklan Indian Dr, Walnut Creek 94595, cjstorer@gmail.com

52 Foster and Janis Shannon of Los Angeles are celebrating their 62nd anniversary in June. He has served as interim head of staff at Alhambra True Light Presbyterian Church and president of Green Leaf Press. Foster enjoys swimming and biking and claims Janis is the world's greatest cook!

Patricia Sumner Paulson and Tom '51 live in Orinda, where they enjoy walking their 105-pound Bernese mountain dog. They have two sons and two daughters, all Cal graduates.

Lenore Bertagna Heffernan and her husband, Frank, live in Ross. She has been a docent in the Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco.

Clifford Egan of Walnut Creek and his wife, Grete Lindeke Egan '53, enjoy extensive travel. When home, Cliff plays golf and attends Kiwanis and SIRS meetings. He has served as president of the UC NROTC Alums, is a member of the Estate Planning Council and the Mt. Diablo Astronomical Society. He is a retired attorney. Cliff and Grete were two of the four founders of Diablo Theatre Company in Walnut Creek.

Members of our class will remember

Senior Women's Hall, also known as Girton Hall, near the old Cowell Hospital. An article in a Bay Area newspaper in January 2014 had a picture of a section of the 103-year-old building, designed by Julia Morgan, being moved to the UC Berkeley Botanical Garden. The remaining three sections will also be moved and the building will be used for social events. The hall more recently served as a campus childcare center. Girton Hall is listed on the National Register of Historic Places and is a City of Berkeley Landmark.

Class Secretaries: Mardy Pletcher Robinson, 1195 Glen Rd, Lafayette 94549, BluDot1195@aol.com; Micky Scholte, 28450 Buena Vista, Mission Viejo 92692, micmar@cox.net

54 60th Reunion, everyone! Party time October 10 and 11, again on Alumni and Family Weekend. You'll receive an invitation for UC events including our Reunion. Lunch will be at the Bancroft Hotel, preceded by visits from the new Berkeley Chancellor, Oski, the Band, a singing group, and a photographer. There will be banners, balloons, and beverages, too.

Secretary Don Denton is working on a program for party-goers who want to Remember Cal by sharing their memories: registration lines, profs, and classes; the Draft, military years, coming home on the GI Bill; living in campus housing or commuting; Telegraph Avenue, eating, buying books, coffee dates, joining campus organizations and clubs, running for ASUC elections, fun or groans of many kinds, best or worst memories, scholarships, honors. If you have them, we will record them, or accept them on paper for the Class Archives. Cal souvenirs, too. If you need more specific information contact a Class Officer by phone or email; we'll be delighted to hear from you! Joe Azalde is staffing our Class email address, calbearjoe@gmail.com, and will send out bulletins as needed. And we will honor our Class Roll of Honor; send your nominations to Don Denton as soon as possible.

You have received a letter from the Berkeley Foundation about contributions to our Class Gift Funds; we hope to add at least $600,000 dollars: For student scholarships, endowments, the libraries, you name it, they need it. Our Gate at Northside is our physical monument; choose to help support those things you cherish most about the University of California at Berkeley, and lift your voices in song at our 60th Reunion. Please add Jim Griffin to your Committee list, as I left off in the Summer Issue. Sorry!

Class Secretaries: Donald Denton, 14039 Strawberry Cir, Penn Valley 95946,

530/432-1888, ddgobears@aol.com; Lesley Walsh, 453 44th Ave, San Francisco 94121, Lesley.walsh@sbcglobal.net

55 Jack Lockhart has been retired from Chevron Corporation, but keeps busy with his second job as a California Probate Referee, a position he has held since 1976. He appraises probate and trust cases. His wife of almost 60 years, Nancy Flynn Lockhart '55, is his administrative assistant. His work schedule still gives him time for traveling, visiting with children and grandchildren, and of course attending Cal football, basketball games, and track meets. Jack and Nancy have lived in the same house in Piedmont for 57 years. He celebrated his 80th birthday by taking his aerobics class to Fenton's and attributes his energy to the milkshakes there. On Nancy's 80th birthday they will be off on a cruise to the British Isles with Betty and Bruce Cropper '55.

Class Secretaries: Bob Leslie, 40 Windward Hill, Oakland, CA 94618, relarbmed@aol.com; Rosemary Meehan Mein, 3748 St. Francis Dr, Lafayette 94549, fax 925/283-2318, rosemeinh@comcast.net

56 Marianne "Poppy" Tanner writes from Atlanta, Georgia, that she was safe and dry even though the winter storms were the worst in years. She lives in mid-town, which is convenient for all her activities. She walks to the symphony, art museum, theatre, botanical garden, park, and restaurants. She plays tennis at a court that is very much like the Berkeley Tennis Club, only it is public and part of the Bobby Jones Golf Park. She is close to MARTA, which is like the Bay Area's BART. She traveled with a group, sponsored by the Metropolitan Museum of Art, on a cruise in the Sea of Tokyo and to Kyoto, where she enjoyed the ancient art. She is involved with the Georgia Trust, which sponsors tours to historical areas. She also has been on the Atlanta Symphony Volunteer Board for several years.

Patt Diroll still writes her column for the Pasadena Star News. She was formerly Society Editor for the Los Angeles Times. Her daughter, Connie, and son-in-law, Rob, both Cal grads, live in the Bay Area. She enjoys visiting them and her two granddaughters.

The class offers our sincere sympathy to Adrienne Richardson on the death of her husband, Sam.

Barbara Jopp Chinn, 5405 Carlton St #404, Oakland 94618, 510/653-0619, chinnares@sbcglobal.net

58 Our 55th Reunion Campaign was a resounding success. The total raised was $1,670,419. Included in the total were contributions to three programs of special interest to the Class: $51,149 for The Mark Twain San Francisco Sketches Fund; $62,826 for The Class of 1958 Achievement Award Program Fund (TAAP); and $23,977 for The J. Christopher Stevens Memorial Fund. The TAAP Fund will provide annual benefits to the recipients (low-income, high-achieving TAAP scholars will receive upwards of $6,000 per year, a laptop upon matriculation, and a suite of TAAP support services). To help us meet the goal of $50,000 midway through the campaign, one of our classmates, Tom Schneider, most graciously and generously matched dollar for dollar any contributions received. In doing so, he wrote: "A TAAP scholar represents best what Berkeley is all about. It goes to the heart of who we are." We are indebted to Tom. Gifts to the Stevens Memorial Fund were made in honor of the late Ambassador Chris Stevens, the son of classmate Mary Floris Commanday. The Fund is designed to encourage and support others to follow in his footsteps as a career diplomat.

We were saddened to receive word of the death in February of Barbara Bell Scott. (See In Memoriam.) Barbara served for many years as one of our Class Secretaries and will be greatly missed.

Class Secretary: Carol Norris Voss, 10240 Golden Meadow Cir, Salinas 93907-1647, CarolV2424@aol.com

61 Members of our class continue to make the most of their lives. Joy Holmes Maguire has managed to do the equivalent of swimming the English Channel in the confines of the Piedmont Pool. She used her daily swims to challenge the record set by Gertrude Ederle in 1926. Gertrude did the 21 miles in 14 hours. Joy is a little older than Ederle was, so it took her 14 days.

Nancy Borio Laytham loves her life in Indian Wells but visits the Bay Area during the summers. She is very active volunteering for various health and art events in the desert and extends a welcome to any alums visiting Palm Desert for a personally guided tour of the Palm Springs Art Museum.

Betty Clark Halberg and her husband, John, visited Kauai for their 50th anniversary. They celebrated in February rather than the actual date because they don't want to miss the gorgeous fall weather at home in Olympic National Park. The rain in Kauai was not all that much compared to home.

Bruce Kane is pleased to have his play, The Case of the Prince Formerly Known as Hamlet, as one of 86 chosen for presentation by the Royal Shakespeare Company, celebrating the 400th anniversary of the older bard's death.

We want to know what you are doing. Please contact your secretary below.

Class Secretaries: Douglas Moore, Jr., 1 Shanley Ln, Ross 94957, Dmoore7519@aol.com; Sandra Mitchell, sandramitchell@aol.com

63 Barry McGough (A.B.'63, LL.B. '66) has been named a 2014 Super Lawyer by Super Lawyers magazine. Barry is a partner at the Atlanta-based family law firm of Warner, Bates, McGough, McGinnis & Portnoy (www.wbmfamilylaw.com). The firm has practiced exclusively in the areas of matrimonial and family law for over three decades.

Class Secretaries: Doris Hawks Torbeck, PO Box 1645, Los Altos 94023-1645, 650/949-4157, doris.hawks@gmail.com; Tom Shelton, PO Box 442, Forestville 95436, casatom@yahoo.com

66 Just as many of us are retiring, Ron Enfield has recently received U.S. patent No. 8,491,952 for "red pepper sauce and method of preparation thereof" in conjunction with his startup sauce business. Ron is CEO of Habit Forming Foods, LLC, a food innovation business that develops new Southwest-style food products. He graduated with a degree in Theater Arts (Motion Picture Production) and has used this knowledge for shooting YouTube videos that demonstrate how to use his sauce. He adds that if you Google "Santa Fe Chili Gravy," you'll see a page of links to his website and to videos on YouTube for making dishes using it. Before becoming a food entrepreneur, Ron spent 45 years developing software for a number of companies, including Control Data, the Port of Seattle, and AT&T Bell Labs. Ron has two daughters, both of whom live in the Philadelphia area and are involved in the film industry.

Class Secretary: Mary Beth Mulvey Buck, 212 East 63rd St, New York, NY 10065, mabuck1@aol.com

68 On March 8, Class of '68 members and friends came together for another quarterly gathering and welcomed Cara Stanley, who talked about the Student Learning Center's services and the large number of students served. Brianna Mullen, Cal Junior and ASUC Senator, gave an overview of the MLK Renovation Project. Goldman School Adjunct Professor and Center on Civility & Democratic Engagement Program Director Larry Rosenthal provided an update on the Center's exciting new program objectives.

The Center on Civility & Democratic Engagement and the Goldman School of Public Policy sponsored a stimulating panel on Cal Day, April 12, with experts discussing Minimum Wage Policy in California and the U.S.: An Emerging Consensus Across Party Lines. This event and all of the Center's public lectures are available on the Center's website.

Make a contribution. Fundraising for the Center, including the Center's Graduate Student Fellowship Fund, is ongoing. Many thanks to Class of '68 members and others in the Cal community for their generous support to date. Contact Cal68@blueconnect.org to get more involved, or for more information, visit gspp.berkeley.edu/centers/ccde.

Class Secretary: Diane Moreland Steenman, 2407 W. Hazelhurst Ct. Anthem, AZ 85086, dsteenman@aol.com

69 Lynda Drennan Swenson, a long-time banker/finance professional, currently is working mainly in Africa with agricultural cooperatives/associations, agro-dealers, and Savings and Credit Cooperative Organizations. She has worked on all the continents except Antarctica in the past 45 years, and is generally gone for more than 50% of the year. Otherwise, she lives in San Diego and claims it is "America's Finest City." Lynda loved Cal, but graduated in 3 years (It was cheaper!). Her time in Berkeley was school, work (Roos Atkins), study, and sleep. She has one son, who is at Claremont McKenna Graduate School.

Class Secretary: Richard Carter, 99 Florada Ave, Piedmont 94610, richard_carter@cal.berkeley.edu

89 David A. Surbeck has been promoted to partner at Reed Smith LLP in the firm's Philadelphia office. He was previously counsel. David is a member of the Financial Industry Group and concentrates his practice in the representation of lending institutions and borrowers in various banking and commercial finance transactions, correspondent banking, municipal finance, structured and securitized finance, and restructuring and workouts.

Class Secretary: Brett Kanazawa, 651 Stamm Ave, Mountain View 94040-2530, 510/550-6839

90 Professor Matt Mellema has received the Distinguished Teacher Award from the American Association of Veterinary Medical Colleges, its highest honor. Mellema is currently a faculty member of the UC Davis School of Veterinary Medicine.

Class Secretaries: Althea Kippes, PO Box 2807,

San Francisco 94126-2807, 415/541-5692, atkippes@alumni.haas.org

92 Judith Gottesman, MSW, celebrated five years as matchmaker and owner of Soul Mates Unlimited Personalized Jewish Matchmaking. She is the main matchmaker for the West Coast's Jewish Community. She was featured in The New York Times business section in a March article on seniors using matchmakers. Ms. Gottesman, a former geriatric social worker, feels helping people of all ages find love is the most effective kind of social work she can do since love makes everything better.

Class Secretary: Kristine Bryson McCabe, 3477 Crane Wy, Oakland 94602, kbina@hotmail.com

93 Wayne Lifshitz is now Chief Operating Officer at Rescue Social Change Group, a behavior change social marketing company based in San Diego.

99 Don Smith, currently Director of Attorney Development at Fried, Frank, Harris, Shriver & Jacobson LLP in New York City, has agreed to expand his role and serve as the firm's director of Diversity and Inclusion. His new title is the Director of Attorney Development and Diversity, and he will lead the firm's Diversity and Inclusion department and promote best practices related to the diversity of attorneys and staff.

Class Secretary: Staci Goussev, staci@alum.calberkeley.org

00 Ori S. Blumenfeld was recently appointed by the City of Beverly Hills City Council as a Commissioner on the Human Relations Commission. Blumenfeld was also recently selected to the 2014 Southern California Rising Stars list by Super Lawyers magazine.

Class Secretary: Stephanie Huang, wonstern@yahoo.com

03 Sarina Saluja has recently joined Fisher and Phillips, LLP—one of the nation's leading management-side labor and employment law firms. She is now an associate in the company's Los Angeles office, where she concentrates her practice on employment litigation and client counseling.

Class Secretary: Amy Lei, 415/812-5479, kamylei@alumni.haas.org

42 Robert Beckwith Stone, in Castro Valley. A fourth-generation Californian and third-generation Cal graduate, Bob went on to earn his medical degree at Saint Louis University and then practice medicine in Oakland and Yountville for many years. He was a humanitarian who was well loved and respected by his patients and peers. Throughout his life, he remained active in community service. Bob is survived by his wife, Elizabeth; four children, Michael R. Stone, Robert D. Stone Ph.D. '04, Katie L. Stone Ph.D. '98, Leslie J. Stone '88; and eight grandchildren.

44 Sheila Maze, June 21. Sheila attended Castelia High School in Palo Alto. Like her mother, she was a member of Alpha Phi sorority at Cal and served as president of the chapter. Sheila is a former member of the Berkeley Tennis Club in Pebble Beach and the Pioneer Society of California. She was a devoted mother who supported the educational and artistic endeavors of her children and was a particularly dedicated tennis enthusiast. Sheila is survived by her children George, Joan, and Bill and two grandchildren.

46 Patricia Milliken Reynolds, Feb. 9. She graduated from Cal with a degree in political science and was a life-long Delta Gamma. She was active in the community, including as Cub Scout Den Leader and Girl Scout Leader for over 10 years. In mid-life she discovered a passion for travel and embarked on many trips to all corners of the world.

47 Elizabeth (Hansen) Sellier, Jan. 17, Lafayette. Betty was a member of the Delta Gamma sorority. She was a devoted Cal

A professor emeritus of linguistics at Berkeley, Charles J. Fillmore dedicated his professional life to understanding the meaning of words and sentences, and their dependence on the reference frames of speaker and listener. His work touches most aspects of society, from language dysfunctions caused by brain injuries to the natural language interfaces used in today's smart phones.

"He discovered that we think, largely unconsciously, in terms of conceptual frames—mental structures that organize our thought," writes George Lakoff, professor of cognitive linguistics at Berkeley. "The world has lost a scholar of the greatest significance."

For more than five decades, Fillmore's far-reaching insights have influenced fields such as neurolinguistics, education, and lexicography. Paul Kay, a colleague and close collaborator, wrote, "Fillmore's frame semantics remains one of the principal foundations of the field of cognitive linguistics."

As an undergraduate at the University of Minnesota his work on concordances, the alphabetical list of the words present in a text, informed his later work in computing. After 23 years of teaching at Berkeley, he ran FrameNet, a computational lexicography project. "Much of computer work has to do with natural language processing. A number of his former students are now working at Google and Facebook," says Lily Wong Fillmore, his wife of four decades.

When Fillmore was about 11 years old, a missionary in his hometown of St. Paul, Minnesota, gave him the book Linguistic Interludes by Eugene Nida. "This book changed my life," Fillmore said.

As a graduate student at the University of Michigan, another book changed greatly influenced him. "I was among the first in Ann Arbor to read Syntactic Structures, and I became an instant convert," Fillmore said of Noam Chomsky's seminal publication.

Chomsky, in turn, followed Fillmore's work closely in the early 1960s. He recalls Fillmore's insight into "t-markers," the representation of the transformational history of a sentence. "This was only one of a great many [of his] highly significant contributions to understanding the nature of language," says Chomsky.

Fillmore's wife also holds a Ph.D. in linguistics, and "It led to a lot of miscommunication," she says laughingly. "I would start a sentence, and then move on to something else. He would say 'I need a noun phrase to complete your sentence. We need a subject here.' My daughter has called us the Flying Wallendas of the linguistic world."

Stepson Paul Chinn fondly recalls Fillmore's knowledge of the Arabic, Japanese, Russian, and German languages, and his knack for amusing his family by expertly pronouncing foreign words. Fillmore also enjoyed Garrison Keillor-themed cruises, geological field trips, and talking politics with his non-academic friends in the coffeehouses of San Francisco.

Fillmore died in San Francisco on February 13 at the age of 84. He is survived by his wife; stepchildren Fran, Angela, and Paul; and two step-grandchildren.

—Robert Nizza

alumna and an avid fan of Cal's football and basketball teams. Some of her fondest memories were made during her time at Cal. She is survived by children Bill '71 and James, two grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

James S. Moulton, Jan. 31, in Carmichael. Jim played freshman tennis at Cal before leaving for the Merchant Marine. After sea duty and graduation from the Merchant Marine Academy in Long Island, he served as an ensign in the Navy in the Pacific Theater. Returning to Cal and varsity tennis he graduated in agricultural economics and worked in farm equipment and construction industries in the San Joaquin and Sacramento Valleys. He was a member of Alpha Delta Phi, Winged Helmet, and the Big C Society. Jim and Emily Andrews '44 were married for 68 years. Jim is survived by his wife, two children, four grandsons, and four great-grandchildren.

48 Philip Bruce Anderson, MBA '50, Aug. 24, in Orange. He lived with his wife, Hazel Jean Anderson, and was always proud to be a Cal Alum.

Oleg John Baloff, March 8, in Thousand Oaks. Oleg's degree was in civil engineering. He will be remembered as a frequent and aggressive bridge player at the Student Union. Oleg is survived by his wife, Janice, two children, two grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

49 Ernest Claire James Jr., Feb. 2, in Santa Rosa. Ernie enlisted in the California National Guard in 1940 and patrolled the California coast before completing OCS and being assigned to Plattsburg, NY. There he joined the 238th Engineer Combat Battalion and met his future wife, Faith Montani. Ernie's battalion landed on Utah Beach early in the morning of D-Day and took part in numerous other actions. He lectured extensively on keeping the memory of the holocaust alive so that it may never happen again. The National Holocaust Museum has made a videotape of his experiences, which is played when the museum is open. After the war, Ernie married Faith then graduated from Cal with a B.S. in civil engineering. Ernie's career included 32 years with the State of California where he eventually became chief of civil design for the California State Water Project. After retirement, he worked for private engineering firms in Saudi Arabia and Egypt doing urban infrastructure studies. Ernie and Faith officially retired in 2000 and moved to Santa Rosa to enjoy spending time with their children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. Ernie is survived by his wife of 68 years, two children, three grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and his brother, Bob.

Myron Morgan, Dec. 29, in Cedar Hills, UT. Myron married Virginia Warburton Mehler Merrell in 1974. Myron graduated from Cal with a degree in mechanical engineering. He remained at the University doing research on a long-term, top-secret project. He is credited with the development of the proximity fuse, which is used in rocket motors, and which he later used as part of the anti-ballistic missile. Myron designed the ABM, patented in 1974, and later assigned it to his employer, Aerojet. At the end of his career, he worked on the space shuttle Endeavor that was to replace the Challenger. He worked on many other programs, including MX Missile and the Star Wars Program. He was a mentor to young engineers and after his retirement consulted for a period of time. He is survived by his wife, Virginia, four children, two stepchildren, three grandchildren, and Virginia's 12 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren.

51 Dorothy Fizmaurice McJenkin, Jan. 25, in Laguna Hills. Dorothy was a speech major at Cal, and graduated as a member of OBK. She married Gerald McJenkin '49 in 1951 after graduation. She was a speech pathologist for over 50 years, helping hundreds of people with their speech difficulties. She taught at Cal State University, Los Angeles and Santa Ana College. She is survived by husband Jerry, two daughters, and grandsons Matthew '14 and Michael Schladen.

52 Dudley Claude Blodget, Aug. 28, in Paradise. Claude graduated from Berkeley with a degree in entomology and herpetology. He traveled as a researcher with the Scripps Institute to the Galapagos Islands where he fell in love with the Darwin stag beetle. After graduation, he joined the Army and was deployed to Korea, working as a medical entomologist with the 8097th MASH unit. Discharged from the Army in 1954 as a first Lieutenant, he worked in the entomology lab at UCLA and was a member of many research parties traveling to Mexico to study iguanas, which were then donated to the San Diego Zoo. He is survived by Sandra, his wife of 57 years, his three brothers, three children, eight grandchildren, and a great-grandson.

Donald Lewis Edgar, Jan. 30, in Oakland. Born and raised in Fresno, Don met Joan in high school and they had a wonderful marriage of more than 60 years. A graduate of Boalt School of Law, Don had a distinguished legal career in Oakland for over 50 years. Don was active in Rotary, Oakland museums, and Boy Scouts. At Cal, he was a member of Kappa Delta Rho and the Ski Club. Don is survived by his wife; two sons, Blake and Brian; one grandson; and his sister.

Mary A. Savoie, Feb. 20. In the 1940s she worked for NACA, the forerunner of NASA. She was a retired personnel officer of Moss Regional Hospital, a retired medical transcriptionist from Lake Charles Memorial Hospital, and was employed at Premier Health Services as a transcriptionist.

Robert S. Wood, Jan. 8, in Sedona, AZ. Born in Berkeley, Robert ran the San Francisco office for TIME/LIFE in the 1960s, and wrote for them as well as for Sports Illustrated. He is the author of 12 published books. Robert had a true passion for the outdoors, travel, and studying human nature. He is survived by his wife, sister, two daughters, and two grandsons.

53 Raymond L. Willsey, Nov. 4, 2013. Raymond led the Golden Bears to a 26-0 victory over Stanford in the 1952 Big Game. He graduated with a business degree and went on to coach football at Cal amid campus unrest in the late 1960s. He coached for eight seasons and on a few occasions was exposed to tear gas used by police to break up nearby protests. From 1978 to 1987, he was an assistant for the Raiders, part of Super Bowl victories in Oakland and Los Angeles. He had previously served as an NFL assistant coach with Washington and St. Louis. Raymond was inducted into the Orange County Sports Hall of Fame in 1993.

Joseph Sax, a legal scholar and Berkeley Law professor, developed the legal doctrine that established nature as a public trust. He is frequently referred to as the “Father of Environmental Law.” He died at his San Francisco home March 9, at the age of 78.

“Joe Sax was the dean of natural resources law in the United States, and probably the single most influential figure in the development of modern water law,” said Berkeley Law lecturer Antonio Rossmann. “Sax’s 1970 essay, ‘The Public Trust Doctrine in Natural Resource Law: Effective Judicial Intervention,’ singularly influenced the California Supreme Court’s 1983 decision that Los Angeles’s 1940 water rights to divert water away from Mono Lake needed to be reconsidered to protect the lake’s ecological qualities—the most important 20th-century water law decision from that leadership court.” Rossmann worked on the breakthrough Mono Lake case with Mr. Sax.

Sax’s essay, published in the Michigan Law Review, referenced Roman and English common law, which forbade grants that hinder public access over land or navigability over water. He cited an American case of 1892, in which on similar grounds the Supreme Court overturned a decision by the Illinois Legislature to grant 1,000 acres of Michigan shoreline to the Illinois Central Railroad Company. Sax collected these and other precedents for the Mono Lake case in which the National Audubon Society brought suit against the Los Angeles water district.

From 1997 to 2008, the public trust doctrine was used in almost 300 state and federal decisions. It has disallowed private ownership of fish stocks and crustacean beds, and has expanded rights in nations around the world. Not only does this doctrine disallow seizure of public land for private benefit of individuals, businesses, or corporations, but it has helped impose environmental standards ensure protection of said land. In many countries its influence is synonymous with environmental protection, and has been integrated into constitutions and statutory provisions.

Professor Sax graduated from Harvard in 1957 and the University of Chicago Law School in 1959. He wrote Michigan’s Environmental Protection Act while teaching at the University of Michigan. He also taught at University of Colorado and Berkeley’s Boalt law school.

Sax advised Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt during the Clinton administration. While teaching at Colorado, he worked with the Sierra Club, which awarded him the William O. Douglas Legal Achievement award. He was a co-recipient of the Blue Planet Prize from the Asahi Glass Foundation, the equivalent of a Nobel Prize for environmental science.

Joseph Sax is survived by his three daughters, Katherine Dennett, Valerie Sax, and Amber Rosen, and his four granddaughters.

Joyce Kislitzin Kallgren, M.A. ’55, Aug. 3, 2013, in Moraga. Born and raised in San Francisco, Joyce represented Cal in the prestigious Joffre debate competition with Stanford. She was a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, Prytanean, Mortar Board, and Phi Beta Kappa. Joyce earned a Ph.D. in Chinese politics from Harvard, then became professor of political science at UC Davis and gained recognition as a leading scholar in the field of Chinese studies. In addition, she served as Chair of the UC Berkeley Center for Chinese Studies, Acting Director of its Institute of East Asian Studies, and as assistant to Chancellor Mike Heyman. She was co-editor of the Berkeley-based Asian Survey journal and an adjunct scholar at Shanghai’s East China Normal University. She is survived by her husband of 60 years, Ed Kallgren ’51, Boalt ’54; daughter, Virginia K. Pegley ’85; son, Charles E. Kallgren; and four grandchildren.

55 George Albion Gibbs, Dec. 13. George married Patti McMartin Gibbs in 1956. George followed his family’s tradition by attending Cal, where his father played football and two older sisters attended during the war years. After graduation, they all moved back to Southern California. George also played football for Cal and was one of “Pappy’s Boys.” He was an active member of Psi Upsilon fraternity. After completing his ROTC training, he fulfilled his military obligations as an officer at Harmon Air Force Base, Newfoundland. His life’s journey took him back to Southern California until 1973 when he moved his family to the Seattle area, where he remained until his death. George is survived by his wife, three children, and seven grandchildren.

58 Barbara Bell Scott, Feb. 24, in Santa Cruz. A fifth-generation Californian, Barbara first attended Occidental College but graduated from Berkeley. While at UC she met Bob, and they married in 1959. They moved to Santa Cruz with two young boys in 1964. Over the years Barbara was active in the PTA, AAUW, Planned Parenthood, her church, and many other organizations. She served many years as Class Secretary. Barbara was perhaps best known for her knitting. She taught, designed and edited patterns, wrote for national magazines, and judged for the county fair. She was bestowed with an honorary life membership by The Knitting Guild Association. Barbara is survived by her loving husband, their son Jim, two grandchildren, and brothers Robert and Bruce Bell.

61 Susan (Knott) Burke, Feb. 6, in Grass Valley. Susan was an active member of CAA for many years. Donations to CAA in her honor are encouraged. She is survived by her husband, Francis Ramon Burke, three children, and three grandchildren.

62 Reed Moyer, Feb. 5. Dr. Moyer, an economist whose interests spanned the fields of U.S. business, international trade, and marketing, graduated from Harvard University. While a sophomore at Harvard, he met the love of his life, Susan Belle Lazo, and they married in 1944, hours before his deployment to the French theatre. He served in the 100th Infantry Division of the Army, and was awarded a Bronze Star. He returned briefly to Cambridge to finish his studies at Harvard, and then moved with Sue to Madison, WI, where he obtained a master’s degree in economics. He and his family went to Berkeley in 1958, where he obtained his Ph.D. in economics in 1962. He went on to teach and write for the rest of his career, first at Michigan State University, and later at the University of Florida, Cal, and Stanford University. Along the way, an interest in the legal process led him to obtain a J.D., which he used in his retirement years as an arbiter in business disputes. He is survived by his wife, two daughters, seven grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

63 Neil W. Ross, Feb. 17. Ross studied criminology at Berkeley and went on to become a therapist and addiction counselor, working in the San Francisco Department of Health’s Center for Special Problems. Later he was assistant professor of forensic psychology at Argosy University.

72 John R. Dietz, Feb. 9. John went on to receive his M.D. from Jefferson Medical College in ’77. He married Kay Annette Dietz in ’77 and they lived in Calabasas, where they raised their two daughters.

IN MEMORIAM

He is survived by his wife, brother Donald, sister Kathy Folgelgren, and daughters Amy and Sena.

78 Patricia A. Shepherd, Jan. 11, in Alameda. Patricia graduated with a degree in English and was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. After earning a law degree from UCLA, she was employed by Littler Mendelson until her retirement in 2011. She was a shareholder at the San Francisco office. She is survived by her four siblings, Nancy '71, Joan '81, Laurie '83, and Jack.

88 Vincent G. Sanchez, optometry Ph.D. '90, Sept. 8. Vincent was born with an insatiable thirst for knowledge, musical prowess, and the drive to master whatever he strove to be. From childhood, music played an integral role in his life as a conduit of his creativity, passion, and voice. On March 9, 1985, he married Brenda Reagan and soon moved to Berkeley after receiving an economics degree from ASU. Throughout the remainder of his life, Vincent continued practicing optometry, playing music, and strengthening his family bonds. He touched the lives of everyone who met him and always encouraged others to do great things and never dwindled in the face of adversity. Vincent is survived by his children Megan, Brandon, Melody, and Joshua; siblings Susan, Annette, and Gary; and parents George and Bertha.

FACULTY AND STAFF

Jean Heywood Donald, Jan. 16. Donald's musical talent became evident early on, as she won local and regional vocal competitions at the start of what would be a life-long singing career. In addition, Donald had a Berkeley career that began in 1963 at the California Alumni Association coordinating reservations for the Lair of the Golden Bear. She later held positions with the UC Berkeley Foundation and the UC Berkeley Development Office. Most notably, she was the liaison between the University and its largest donors, members of the Robert Gordon Sproul Associates. Having received many accolades for her University service, Donald retired from UC in 1984 as a senior administrative analyst. She is survived by son Robert G. Heywood, M.A. '72, daughter Carol Heywood Low, and grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

William Lee Jolly, professor emeritus of chemistry, Jan. 10, in Richmond. He earned his bachelor's and master's degrees in chemistry at the University of Illinois. Jolly's research at Berkeley, the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, and the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory included thermodynamics, volatile hydrides, sulfur-nitrogen compounds, liquid ammonia solutions, and atomic core binding energies. He published many research articles, much-used college texts, and a history of the College of Chemistry at Berkeley. Two of his books facilitated the mid-20th-century renaissance of inorganic chemistry in the U.S. In photographic chemistry, he was renowned for his work on the Sabatier effect and spectacular printing techniques such as chromoskedastic solarization and silver mirror printing. His monograph Solarization Demystified is cited as a seminal work in photographic literature. In 1952 Jolly received his Ph.D. under Wendell M. Latimer at Berkeley and was appointed an instructor in the College of Chemistry. He headed the Physical Chemistry and Inorganic Chemistry Division at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory 1952-55, where he helped devise compounds used in the testing of thermonuclear devices. He was appointed a full faculty member in 1955. In 1960 he studied at Heidelberg University as a Guggenheim Fellow. In 1984 he was elected a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Thomas Alber, March 27, in Berkeley. A professor of molecular and cell biology, he was known for his novel and complex biochemical and structural studies of proteins related to HIV and TB. At the time of his death, Alber, who completed his Ph.D. in biology at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, held the Chancellor's Class of '43 Chair and was the founding director of the Henry Wheeler Center for Emerging and Neglected Diseases, a faculty affiliate in the California Institute for Quantitative Biosciences, and a member of the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory division of physical biosciences. Alber is survived by his wife, Julie Nye, and their children, Josh, Emily, and Mackenzie; and his brothers, William, Chad, and Don.

Sableu Cabildo, Feb. 20, in Oakland. Cabildo provided support in all three Information Services Technology locations during her career, starting in the Shattuck building, moving on to Banway, and finally moving to Earl Warren Hall. Her positive, optimistic outlook was inspiring to all and she never missed an opportunity to explain to people how blessed and joyful she felt in her life.

Robert Coleman, March 24, in San Pablo. A professor emeritus of mathematics, Coleman was known for his creative contributions to modern number theory. His undergraduate degree was from Harvard University, and he later entered graduate school at Princeton. He began teaching at Berkeley in 1983 and was a recipient of a MacArthur "Genius" Fellowship in 1987. Coleman published 63 papers, including 8 papers in the prestigious journal Inventiones Mathematicae and 5 in the Duke Mathematical Journal. A mathematics conference in his honor is scheduled to be held at Berkeley in May 2015. He is survived by Tessa, his wife of less than two years.

Harold Lecar, Feb. 4. A professor in the Department of Molecular and Cell Biology, Lecar was educated at Columbia University, where he received his Ph.D. in physics in 1963 on the use of masers in microwave spectroscopy. From 1963 to 1985 he worked in the Biophysics Laboratory at the American National Institute of Neurological Disorders and Stroke. In 1985, he joined the Berkeley faculty as a professor of biophysics and neurobiology. He is survived by his wife, Helene, two children, and three grandchildren.

Sydney Kustu, March 18, age 71, in Berkeley. A distinguished faculty member in the Department of Plant and Microbial Biology and a member of the National Academy of Sciences, Kustu made significant contributions with her pioneering work in bacterial gene expression. Kustu earned a B.A. at Harvard University and a Ph.D. in biochemistry from UC Davis, and did post-doctoral work at Berkeley until 1973, when she was appointed to the UC Davis Bacteriology faculty. She joined the Berkeley faculty in 1986 and retired in 2010. She is survived by her son, Saul Kustu, and her sisters, Roberta Glassman and Marica Govons
