ePortfolio Assignment Guide

Assignments from Pace professors who incorporate ePortfolios into their courses
Instructions and rubric for Assignment #1

Museum careers

For this assignment, I would like you to reflect on your understanding of a diversity of possible museum careers associated with making exhibitions in a museum setting.

- Watch all the short videos/interviews available on the MoMA website about the Bauhaus exhibition. They present different positions in a museum (curator, curator assistant, educator, editor...).

- Select two videos that reflect your own interest regarding museum careers and write for each a one-page (approx. 300 words) an informed reflective response, (to take a critical position that reflects your personal opinions and evaluation)

- Present this material on an ePortfolio's page (video + text).

For your reflection you should consider the following questions:

- What is the role of a ... in a museum setting?
- What is the importance of this position in the overall museum activities and/or in the creation of an exhibition?
- Why would you like to be a... ?
- What are the main activities of a... ?
- What are the aspects of the profession that you find the most and the least exciting?
- Formulate at least 3 questions that remain about this profession after watching the video.

Your reflections will be used in class for short class presentation and class discussion on museum career.

Professor’s Name: Stephanie Jeanjean
Course: Museum Education

Assignment due on November 2nd (at the beginning of the class)

Write a 500 words reflection explaining:

- What was your understanding of what constituted museum education before our meeting with Georgia Krantz at the Guggenheim museum?
- What is now your overall understanding of what museum education is?
- What did you find the most interesting/surprising/challenging/provocative in today’s discussions?
- What evolution do you think museum education could/should take?

Illustrate your answer using material or links from http://www.guggenheim.org/new-york/education and/or www.artbeyonddisight.org

These are simple questions for which there is no right answer, so I want you to push your thought process as much as you can to come up with interesting ideas and suggestions. Also formulate your ideas clearly and concisely.

Ideally, you would submit this assignment as an ePortfolio page (make sure you give access to the page). However, if you anticipate considerable technical difficulties you could also complete this assignment as a word document submitted by email.

Email me if you have any questions.

The requirement — included in my syllabus — was for every student to post three pieces of relevant work on their ePortfolio by the end of the semester (second to last week).

- The work could be assignments submitted for class during the semester and/or other relevant marketing or advertising work the student deemed to be of sufficient quality. Most students submitted a mix of papers, presentations, creative work and web related initiatives.
- It forced / motivated students to think about excellence — what would qualify to be posted and to be reviewed by me. It inspired some (not enough) to revisit work previously completed to edit, amend, improve it to a higher standard most appropriate to be included in a portfolio.

I teach MAR 321 with a number of assignments — short papers, thought pieces, presentations, strategy work etc. So, there was/is a lot of “fuel” for eP posting consideration.

WRITING IN THE DISCIPLINES

What I want you to complete for the ePortfolio assignment, which will be due at the end of the semester:

1) Under Introduction: Post a picture of yourself.
2) Under Introduction: Input an introduction about yourself.
4) Under Academics: Post a wordle created out of the text of your critique (see instructions below).
5) Under Academics: Post a blog that reflects on the writing of the critique paper by responding to the following questions:
   - What most intrigued you about your chosen topic for your critique?
   - What was the greatest challenge you faced in the writing of the critique?
   - How did you overcome the challenge?

How to create the blog is explained at this site: www.pace.edu/eportfolios. Go to the tutorials link on the left hand side and click on the one about blogs.

6) Under Academics: Post a document related to your major. This can be your research paper that you are now working on for this class.
7) Under Resume: Post your resume.

Note: Make sure, under permissions, for each of the areas indicated above: Introduction, Academics, and Resume, to make your portfolio available for me to view, either by adding me as a friend, or by indicating all logged in users can view your portfolio, which would be all people from the Pace community who are logged in.

Course: LIT 132

First ePortfolio assignment for LIT 132—second week:

I. If possible, have a photo of yourself accessible (via email, travel drive, web) that you can upload to your ePortfolio. You will work on your Introduction page, and Academic Materials page:

- Introduction page-- list your goals and skills in the text boxes and upload any quotes that are significant to you; create a “wordle” (word cloud) that can enhance your introduction and ePortfolio presence.
- Academic Materials page-- I create a blog, where you can introduce yourself as a writer, reader, and/or learner (using a metaphor, simile, or analogy, and your literary tag line). You may also want to write about why you think study of literature is worthwhile (per our discussion Monday).

II. Reflective blogs—when essays are due, post a blog on ePortfolio about your writing process and what you learned (questions will be distributed to help prompt your reflections); 4 blog posts are required—as part of your ePortfolio (3 postwrites and one final reflective statement).

III. Here are instructions for your final LIT 132 ePortfolio:

- Complete an inviting introduction that lists your goals and skills (developed in this class and others you have taken), and any other text or image that expresses your individuality
- Complete a Final Reflective Blog that is a summing up of the other blogs you have written and addresses these questions: what have you learned about literature and literary criticism this semester;? What reading did you enjoy the most and why? Which reading did you learn the most from? What did you learn about research? What did you learn from writing and revising your essays?
- Upload your Papers and Projects under Academic Materials—Each uploaded paper (fully revised for “publication” should be accompanied by a brief description; include 2 revised essays;
- Include in your ePortfolio some kind of creative response to literature—it may be in form of a wordle, creative response to one of works read, or use of other medium that illustrates work (photo, video, art work)
- ePortfolio should be completed by Dec. 15th (earlier is fine, but not later than 10pm).
Professor’s Name: Linda Anstendig

Course: ENG 201

IV. Instructions for ENG 201 ePortfolio:

Final ePortfolio—please complete it any time before Thurs. Dec 16. If you finish it before that time, please email me and let me know. Please see the ePortfolio Evaluation Guide.

The ePortfolio should include:

- Introduction—goals and skills; about me statement
- Reflection blogs—Final Reflection and Midterm Reflection – your Final Reflection blog on your ePortfolio can combine some of your previous reflections (you can combine and remove past postwrites that may prove redundant, but keep your midterm reflection up on your ePortfolio). Please address the following points:
  --What have you learned about writing, reading, and research in this course?
  --What have you accomplished as a writer and learner?
  --What activities, kinds of feedback, and other support have helped you the most?
  --How have your writing and research skills changed and improved?
  --What kinds of research and revision strategies did you learn and use?
  --What does this portfolio demonstrate about you as a writer, researcher, and learner? Use an analogy, simile, and/or metaphor to describe yourself as one of these...
  --What are your future goals as a writer, researcher, and learner in your discipline and beyond?

- Papers and Projects—essay 2 (revised) and essay 4 (polished and in publishable form and with descriptive tag); case study reflection and synthesis; work from other class that you are proud of—can be posted where you think is appropriate
- Resume and cover letter (or summary of qualifications)
- Example of extra-curricular /co-curricular activity
- Any creative or other relevant artifact to show who you are as a student and person
Professor’s Name: Dr. Bette Kirschstein

Course: LIT 301

Digital Story Assignment: YA Lit book trailers: students created promotional book trailers of between 1 and 1 ½ minutes.

Student Samples:
- Paige Zannetti & Kelly Paulson’s trailer for Daniel Handler’s “Why We Broke Up”
- Veronica Goin’s trailer for Francesca Lia Block’s “Dangerous Angels”

Professor’s Name: Dr. Bette Kirschstein

Course: LIT 373

Digital Story Assignment: Digital Stories: students created 10-15 minute mini-documentaries on a particular aspect of English culture in the early 20th century (the period of literature we studied). These digital stories provided background for the works we read and broadened students’ knowledge of the era.

Student Samples:
- “Workers & Writers: British Socialism & Modernist Literature”
- “The Bloomsbury Group”

Professor’s Name: Dr. Michelle M. Pulaski Behling

Course: MCA 601

ePortfolio Assignment: Graduate students create an eportfolio showcasing their work and personal interests. This semester-long project is a requirement for students in the Master’s in Communication Arts program. Students are also required to present their ePortfolios to the class and provide feedback on their peers’ work through ePortfolio.

Student Samples:
- Carly Steet
- Caity Kirshbaum
Professor’s Name: Heather Bryant / Dr. Karen Berger

Course: ENG 201 / MAR 250

ePortfolio Assignment: One assignment that involved many of the ePortfolio features was the ePortfolio "Brand" assignment, in which students had to create their own personal brand and market themselves on ePortfolio.

Digital Storytelling Assignment: Research an industry issue and create a marketing strategy that addresses the issue in a short video.

Student Sample:
- Jessica Szczecichowicz

Professor’s Name: Dr. Maria L. Plochocki

Course: ENG 201

Digital Story Assignment: 5-minute digital narrative of significant turning point or event in the student's life, something that taught him/her an important lesson to be shared with others;

Student samples:
- “Trip With PTP”
- “Digital narrative English 110 John Rustemian”
- “Composition Project”
Professor’s Name: Dr. Andrew Wier

Course: BIO 264

ePortfolio Assignment: Students choose a bacterial phylum and build an ePortfolio page over eight weeks. Page components include:

- Introduction: Written for high school-college-age students, includes important genera, close relatives, ecology, energy-carbon source and typical mode of nutrition, relevance to humans and the Earth, role in nutrient cycling and other important facets. Includes references and is 3-5 pages in length.

- News Blog: Includes news from both print and online sources relevant to the phylum. Eight entries are required. Each post includes: title, commentary regarding the article (why it is relevant, interesting and worthy of posting), link to the article or uploaded copy, appropriate credit/acknowledgements to the source and author of article.

- Multimedia: Photographs (displayed in image gallery, includes captions and acknowledgements), videos (cited) and scientific publications (links and PDFs).

Students are required to make their page accessible to all logged-in users and view their classmates’ pages.

15% of final exam material is from student ePortfolios.
Prior to tackling the following three ePortfolio assignments for this semester, go to https://eportfolio.pace.edu/ and log in, using your Pace email and password. Be sure to set permissions to “Logged in Users.” Contact your instructor for general assistance and Samantha Egan (segan@pace.edu) for technical help.

Assignment # 1:
In the Introduction section

(a) Under SKILLS, write what your skills are (not only academic skills).
(b) Under GOALS, write about your goals—both short and long term.
(c) Create a WORDLE about yourself and place it in the Profile section

DEADLINE: THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 27

Assignment # 2:
In the Academic Materials section,

(a) Place the Final Draft of your Research Essay in PDF format
(b) Create a WORDLE on the topic you selected for your research essay
(c) Place a short 1 to 2 sentence description or reflection on your essay that talks about what you were trying to accomplish in your paper and one main point you learned about the topic

DEADLINE: TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 20

Assignment # 3:
In the Academic Materials section,

(a) Place what you consider your Best Graded Essay in PDF format
(b) Place your Reflection Letter in PDF format
(c) Write a 1 to 2 sentence description, or reflection, on your Best Graded Essay that explains why you consider it your best essay

DEADLINE: THURSDAY, DECEMBER 20

FINAL PORTFOLIO—ePortfolio # 3
DUE December 15

The Final Portfolio showcases your best writing for the semester and takes the place of a Final Exam. It consists of the following items placed in PDF format on your ePortfolio:

1. Reflective Letter—minimum of one page, typed (see details below)
2. Your “Best” Essay—What you consider your best graded Final Draft (It should be as free of errors as possible!)
Note: You may revise this Final Draft (for a better grade). However, you will have to turn in a print-out of it along with the original graded Final Draft. Then, you will need to PDF the revision, and place it on ePortfolio along with your Reflective Letter.

3. Any other pieces written for this course that you would like to include

Specifications: The Reflective letter and any revisions must be typed.

Reflective Letter Questions: The Reflective Letter is an opportunity for you to discuss your writing progress during the course. Please use the following questions to organize your self-evaluation.

Each numbered question could be treated as a separate paragraph. This “letter” counts as part of the overall Final Portfolio grade.

1. (a) How would you evaluate your writing this semester?
   (b) What have you learned about writing this semester? Which assignment did you learn the most from? Which was the most difficult/challenging and why?
   (c) What kind of feedback was most helpful to you? Least helpful? Please explain.

2. (a) How would you analyze your writing style?
   (b) What do you consider your greatest strength(s) and weakness(es) as a writer?
   (a-) What weakness(es) in writing have you overcome/ tried to overcome? How well did you succeed?

3. (a) If you revised an essay, how is it different from the original Final Draft?
   (b) If you decided your “best” essay needed no revision, on what did you base your decision?

4. What does your Final Portfolio reveal about you as a writer? A reader? A student? A learner?

5. Is there anything else I need to know in order to fairly and adequately evaluate your portfolio?

6. How would you evaluate this portfolio method? That is, what do you like/dislike about it?

EC: Eight points extra credit on the writing grade will be given to students who complete the ePortfolio Assignment #3 as described above AND also participate in the ePortfolio Pilot Assessment Project. In this project, two or three English faculty review Research Essays and Final Portfolios. Your instructor would let you know when to withdraw ePortfolio access, sometime in late January.
Professor’s Name: Vicki deVries

Course: English 120D, Spring 2012

The following three ePortfolio Assignments will be graded as part of your Participation and Writing grades. Be sure to set Permissions for each section/page on ePortfolio to “Logged in Users.”

A. ePortfolio Assignment # 1: Due on March 20

1. Under Introduction and Goals and Skills:
   a. Under Introduction, write a paragraph introducing yourself. Under Goals and Skills, describe your goals and skills. Try to make these sections as unique as you are. Feel free to include a few quotes that you find meaningful.
   b. Create a “wordle,” aka “word cloud,” that ties in with you who are. Directions for creating a wordle are at: http://www.pace.edu/ctlt/eportfolios/tutorials

2. Under Academic Materials:
   a. Post a piece of writing in PDF format that you have done for the course so far, such as a freewrite, journal reaction, speech, homework question, or essay, along with a short description of what it is about and why you chose it.
   b. Then, create a blog in which you respond to the following questions: If you were to revise this piece of writing, what would you change/improve? Why? If nothing, why not?
   c. Now, turn this piece of writing into another genre, such as an op-ed piece, a letter to the editor, newspaper article, etc, and post it. What did you learn about writing from this exercise? NOTE: You may access information on creating a blog at www.pace.edu/eportfolios. Click on the “tutorials” link (left-hand side of the screen) and then click on “blogs.”

B. ePortfolio Assignment # 2: Visual Analysis Project Due on April 13

Under Academic Materials:
   a. Post your Visual Analysis project in PDF format, along with any photos, cartoons or artwork (such a picture of your poster), and include a brief description of the project and why you chose the particular visual genre.
   b. Create a blog in which you reflect on the project and answer the following questions: Why did you select that topic for this project? What did you learn about visual argumentation and analysis from working on this project?

C. ePortfolio Assignment # 3: Final Portfolio & Research Essay Due May 1

Under Academic Materials:
a. Upload your Final Portfolio in PDF format (best graded essay, which you have revised for “publication” on ePortfolio, and your reflective letter) with a brief description of the essay topic and why you selected it.

b. Upload your Research Essay with the Works Cited page in PDF format with a brief description of what you were trying to accomplish in this paper.

Professor’s Name: Vicki deVries

Course: English 120D, Spring 2013

Pace University has set a goal for all students to participate in its e-Portfolio system. E-Portfolio is a means of collecting, selecting and reflecting on one’s academic work and other materials that will be useful both now and later in one’s career.

E-Portfolio enables students to post selected files, images, videos and blogs that reflect their success and progress as students while enriching their learning, preparing for their field of work, and sharpening their technological skills.

Unlike with Blackboard, students have access to all the work they post on their ePortfolio accounts after the course has ended and after graduation.

In addition to sharing your ePortfolio with your professor, you can share any or all of your ePortfolio pages with others, including family, friends, peers and potential employers. The ePortfolio’s ability to create a polished and professional image makes it a great tool to use when searching for internships and jobs and to continue adding to throughout your college experience and beyond.

LOGGING ON: To log on to your ePortfolio, go to http://eportfolio.pace.edu. You can also find the ePortfolio under E as part of the A-Z index on the Pace Home Page.

Students who are new to ePortfolio will have two assignments, while students returning to ePortfolio will have only one assignment because they already did their profile, goals and skills and personal wordle.

GENERAL ASSIGNMENT: At the end of the semester, PDF your Research essay, your “best” essay and your Reflective letter and place them in Academic Materials on your ePortfolio, along with a short description of each item.

NEW STUDENTS: After doing the introductory assignment, you must also do the GENERAL ASSIGNMENT. In the Introduction section, write your goals and skills and a description of yourself. Then, create a wordle that describes you and place it in your Introduction section.

Both 10% Participation and 5% Writing credit will be given to students who do the ePortfolio assignment(s). Note: EXTRA CREDIT will be given for participating in the ePortfolio Assessment, if your instructor participates in it.
To participate, students would give access to Logged in Users until the end of June 2013. One or two instructors in addition to Prof de Vries would have access to these materials; a Research Librarian would also be reading the materials in order to improve research assistance procedures. Prof de Vries would inform students when to block their ePortfolio accounts from Open Access.

Other Ideas for Incorporating ePortfolios:

- Instructor: Emilie Zaslow
  Course: Children in Urban Society
  Method: Had students submit journals via ePortfolio

- Instructor: Sheying Chen
  Course: Organization Theory and Management (PAA602)
  Method: All assignments are submitted via ePortfolio in a special folder on each student’s Academic Materials page titled “Files For Dr. Chen”

- Instructor: Public Administration Faculty
  Course: Several courses in the program
  Method: Created a group on ePortfolio to serve as a virtual “study group” for students in the Masters in Public Administration
